Nature Ritual

- Stone Therapy -

2.8 billion years ago, at the beginning of the earth's history, when life on earth did not even exist, the earth's crust began to change. In the northeastern part of Finland, near the Russian border, continental plates collided and mountains up to 9,000 meters high rose, creating an enormous air pocket. The soapstone was created when a lump of molten rock entered the air pocket and caused extreme compression. The soapstone was buried in the earth for many years after that, but 4 ice ages covered the earth and scraped away the uplift, revealing the Karelian Soapstone near the surface. This is how the natural world endowed soapstone with mystical powers to withstand the harsh environment of Northern Europe. Using this mysterious stone, the Lapidem Nature Ritual is a dynamic natural experience inspired by the beauty of Finnish landscapes.

The Laboratory has been researching the mechanism of cellular aging and rejuvenation for many years. It believes that the rejuvenation of six types of hair-forming cells is essential for hair regeneration, and after 15 years of research, the Laboratory has carefully selected 300 herbs that are known for their beauty effects from approximately 10,000 Ayurvedic herbs and discovered the optimal combination of 18 herbs.

Due to the variability in herbal components depending on origin, cultivation season, and harvest timing, each herb undergoes rigorous analysis, sourcing from at least four different lots with varying conditions. Only those that pass stringent quality checks are used in product formulation.
